Posteroos
\[\text{past(ə)res}\]

Nate Bunnyfield
KU–Center for Research on Learning
The program says...

Posterous is a leading blogging platform with some fantastic social media integration. We will explore basic “lifestreaming” (posting a video to Twitter/Facebook from a mobile phone), collaborative blogging, and advanced (setting up DNS entries; using Google Analytics; and customizing Lifestreaming?

• A stream or feed of one’s social activity

• Coined at Yale University in 1996 as a replacement for the desktop metaphor

Getting Started:

No setup! Just send an email.
Getting Started:
No setup! Just send an email.

Email
post@posterous.com
Features

• No cost and ad-free
• Hosted video and photo galleries with pleasant resizing
• Commenting with moderation and spam filtering
• Quick and easy tagging
• Mobile device friendly
• Update with your phone or your computer
Draft posts

Send an email to private@posterous.com Automatically post to...

- Flickr
- Facebook
- Twitter
- WordPress
- Tumblr

- Blogger
- iTunes
- Podcast
- LiveJournal

and more…
Control freak-friendly

Send an email to
twitter@posterous.com

Or flickr+vimeo+
youtube@posterous.com
Collaborative blogging

It's time to stop posting
Migrate from...

- ActiveRain
- Blogger
- Flickr
- Live Spaces
- LiveJournal
- Movable Type
- Ning
- SquareSpace

- Tumblr
- TweetPhoto
- TwitPic
- TypePad
- Vox
- WordPress
- Xanga

http://posterous.com/switch
Also check out...

• Tumblr
• Twitter
• Facebook
Also check out...

- Tumblr
- Twitter
- Facebook
Also check out...

- Tumblr
- Twitter
- Facebook
Also check out...

• Tumblr
• Twitter
• Facebook
Level up!

- Custom domains e.g. blog.sidlit.org
- Custom themes
- Google Analytics
Demo
Web Developers’ SIG
RC 175 during lunch

posterous.com
post@posterous.com

Nate Bunnyfield
@natebunnyfield
natebunnyfield@ku.edu